

The intensity (by normal) is related to the intensity (by pixel location) by a domain transformation, i.e. the dimensions are reordered, duplicated, etc.

The subspace of images you can get by varying the illumination is of the same or lower dimension!

(Details: Albedo is a per-patch scale factor that falls through the analysis. Color channels are independent.)

